LATE STATE EVENTS
CONDENSED FOR THE BUSY READER

The tempest in a teapot, which has been brewing in Columbia at the University of Missouri over an unexpected attitude towards offending students has bubbled over following the recent suspension of 30 fair coeds. They were found guilty of participating in a party in a fraternity house after "date hours" and suspended forthwith. Now the corridors of that once peaceful building, recently named Jesse Hall, are in a ferment. "Why?" is the question, whispered back and forth. The girls were properly chaperoned, they contend, went to the house as invited guests and nothing happened during the evening was "out of place," the student body unanimously asserts. But admittedly they visited after "date hours" and were suspended.

The Home Telephone Company of Centralia has been made the defendant in an $800,000 suit filed in the Boone County circuit court at Columbia by the Missouri Public Service Commission, to recover penalties under the public service commission act. The plaintiffs allege that the company violated a ruling made on charges by the telephone company in a hearing held in Centralia in 1914. The public service commission fixed a rate which, under the state law, would be all that the telephone company could charge. The petition charges that the telephone company exceeded this charge and asks for a penalty of $1,000 a day since Oct. 30, 1914, when the ruling went into effect.

The 15 indorsed candidates for delegates at large to the constitutional convention to be called at Jefferson City in the near future by Gov. Holt were all elected at the recent state election. The official count, which was concluded recently by Secretary of State Becker, showed only 307,000 votes cast in the entire state and that the indorsed candidates had gone over. At the presidential election in November, 1920, more than 1,300,000 ballots were tabulated in Missouri. There will be 83 delegates to the constitutional convention if the Republicans decide to select a delegate in the 6th senatorial district. This district failed to nominate a candidate.

J. A. Parker and Lee Carl Overstreet, both of St. Louis, starred as the ending male characters in the musical comedy, "All Aboard," which was given at Fulton by Westminster and Synodical College students and Fulton townpeople, under the auspices of the Westminster Debating Club. Parker, as Bob Brady, a football hero, won much applause. Overstreet, as Johnny Thompson, Brady's chum, was clever. The cast was composed of 250 persons.

Southern Missouri and Northern Arkansas are going to play an important part in the apple production of the Ozark country if the present weather continues, say horticultural experts who have made an investigation of conditions in the Missouri and Arkansas territory. Scores of orchards were gone over and the opinion of the experts is that the prospects for a large apple crop are most encouraging, according to reports at Galena.

The women's department of the state penitentiary at Jefferson City has become so crowded, having now more prisoners than veteran guards can recall ever having been there before, that Warden Hill has notified United States Attorney General Daugherty that no more federal prisoners can be accepted for a time.

Postmaster Fred D. Williams of Fulton has arranged with the government weather observatory to get weather reports every morning by wireless, the reports to be received at the station of Westminster College. These reports will be given out by rural carriers from 24 to 36 hours before it can reach them through newspapers.

Col. T. H. Jackson, United States Engineer Corps, made the annual inspection of the Second Battalion, 128th Field Artillery, Missouri National Guard, in Sedalia. He inspected the drill and personnel of headquarters detachment and combat train and Batteries D, E and F.

John W. Brinegar, aged 75 years, died at his home in Montgomery City. Brinegar had lived in Montgomery county all of his life. His widow, three daughters and three sons survive him.

Miss Stella Hunter and Joseph Vlasnick, both of Bakersfield, Cal., were married at Montgomery City at the home of the bride's brother, John D. Hunter.

Wesley H. Maurer, a student of Bible College at the University of Missouri, has accepted the pastorate of the Christian Church at Laddonia.

Bernie F. Neal, 30, a farmer living 15 miles west of Cape Girardeau, accidentally discharged a rifle as he was preparing for a hunting trip and he died half an hour later of a bullet wound in his forehead. He was single.

Archie D. Gilmore, a Pettis county farmer, aged 30 years, died at his home south of Smittin.

There are sixty federal prisoners in the Pettis County jail at Sedalia. It was announced, all of whom were convicted of operating illicit stills in Jackson, and other counties close to Kansas City.

Summer Clothes Now on Display

Silly, it almost seems, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, during a snow storm to be thinking and writing about summer clothes and fashions. Still that is the way styles have of forcing themselves upon the public gaze. The shops are full of summer things. The salesgirls have begun to think and to sell straw hats and organdie dresses. So what can a poor season do, except to snow as though to insist that it must have its fling!

At any rate the warmer weather that will some day come promises many things in the way of lovely frocks, which now many people are buying to take along to Southern climes. A survey of them must of necessity reveal to us the salient features of what will be the popular new frocks for spring, and as designs which perfect an existing silhouette they make us wonder at the eminence they have achieved.

Paris sends us by far the prettiest of the real summery frocks. They are resplendent with handwork which is not at all lavish or ornate in its appearance. It is intricate and beautiful and carefully done by the cleverest fingers in all the world. It is just a matter of pulling the threads and then working in drawn work stitches—or of winding folded strips of the frock's material into medallions and insertions that trim the frocks most cleverly. In other words, they are making the trimmings in their own hands and when they descend to use lace in any way, it is only in the narrowest varieties of heavy and light weight chiffons with cotton voiles to make another sort of frock. There are plenty of taffetas used in the afternoon gowns for the younger and for the older women.

Organdies in Evidence.
Fascinating summer frocks, now wending their southward ways, have come from Paris to deck the forms of American women. They exhibit the handiwork of an older civilization which the women here are privileged to carry off.

The strips of organdie used to make these medallion patterns are folded and pressed into place. Organdie has a delightful way, you know, of staying where it is put—that is, in this one particular. Then these strips are taken in the hand and shaped into patterns, which are held in place by a spider-web sort of an arrangement of stitches. And, of course, it takes the French women to vary the idea, and elaborate upon it, until we have so vast a flood of handmade frocks that our breaths are taken away by the composite beauty of them all.

There is one organdie frock in a rose pink (and, oh, what colors they do have in this market—they are growing more vivid every day) with rounded medallions sewed around the skirt as a sort of a midway border. Then, encircling the edges of these medallions are attached double rows of petals, ovally shaped and plicated on their edges. They succeed in making large roses for decorations. How clever the designer has proved himself in this instance. He knew that organdie must curl from its very nature—that it could do nothing else, in all sincerity. So he has said to himself, "Oh, very well, I will place you in a position where your chief characteristic will be your brightest charm." And so the organdie has curled to its heart's content and in just the way it wished to curl—to make a flower as a decoration never before thought of for a dress of this sort.

New and Inspiring Creations.
There is no end to the intricacies which these placements of handwork achieve on the organdie gowns. And they are repeated on taffetas, and on chiffons and crepes, with taffeta in the same color, or organdie used to make the trimmings of the two latter materials. There will be a series of round medallions used all around the hem of a skirt, making the transparent ending of the folds to hold the beginnings of flouting sleeves. Others will be placed artistically over the hips to begin the fullness of the skirt. Others will be posed over the shoulders, or there will be an arrangement of lines about the neck line and sleeves to provide the usual sort of finish. In every conceivable way these pieces of handwork are distributed over the summer frocks, making them entirely new and inspiring creations for summer wear.

They will be copied here in one way or another, but we can never do what the French women have done so beautifully—first, because the cost of labor is too enormous, and, secondly, because we have not the patience nor the time nor the art to put into building beautiful dresses of this sort that will fade so soon.

Another thing that is apparent on these French dresses is the arrangement of cotton buttons or beads as they call them. They are white and cream, and they are guaranteed to leave the laundry as cheerfully as they enter its precincts. They are put on in nice little patterns. They are not gathered together in all-over embroideries, as has been the custom with beads, but they are arranged to even rows or in series of triangles or squares, which are repeated often enough to make an interesting pattern.

Cotton Voile in Yellow.
More often they are used on frocks of cotton voile, for it is with that texture they seem to harmonize best. There is a cotton voile dress in a clear shade of yellow. It is of the straight, one-piece variety, hanging from the shoulders. In groups, across the front and back, delicate side pleats are laid, while in open spaces between these plants small triangles of the voile are placed to hold the edges together. And at each point of each triangle there is fastened one of the little cotton beads. That is all the trimming there is to the gown, except that around the waist is tied a glowing bit of ribbon, quite wide and striped with yellow and white.

The colors are the most brilliantly attractive of all the features of these summer frocks. We are getting away from black and pure white, or so the visualizers of fashion tell us. And once again it becomes our privilege to glory in the wearing of colors—colors which, by reason of the perfected dyes, are much more lovely than they have been at any time in the past. Yellow certainly will be one of the coming season's color sensations. And the yellow must be light and clear in tone—not at all near the gold, but far enough away from that to keep itself clear and cool in appearance. Yellow and white is a combination which has everything to commend it. So you who are dark in coloring must lay your plans right now, in you do you step out immediately, to procure some frock of yellow for your spring or summer wardrobe. It would be a pity to let an opportunity like this slip away. Green, too, is good—a very light and brilliant shade of green. And this is particularly smart in taffeta, because that material seems to throw a light from green which cannot be obtained in any other way. Then there are gorgeous shades of violet, and subtle tones of pink and blue, which seem new because they are really so much more true in tone than they have often been in the past.

Use Taffeta Appliques

Another little trick that is displayed on these French thin dresses is that of using taffeta appliques on chiffon and voile. The prettiest of these frocks are done this way: The little petals of taffeta in many soft pastel colorings are cut from the silk and fastened on the white background in a series which makes sort of rosy, leafy pattern. The raw edges of the petals are held down with rows of rat-tail braid (that braid which has a hump on its surface every now and then). This makes the most illusive sort of trimming, giving the frock the appearance of having rose leaves scattered over its surface by some sudden summer breeze. The effect is entirely new and just as lovely as it can be.

Many of these summer dresses have no hems at all, but are simply finished with a binding of the material that makes the gown. It is a new sort of finish, which has been used a lot upon crepe dresses this winter, but which looks even more attractive on the more transparent materials.

Sleeves are either very wide and floppy, or else they seem to disappear from sight altogether. There are any number of those extremely short, tight-fitting sleeves which had so many firm supporters last spring on the thinner dresses. We had not expected their revival, but so far as the French dresses are concerned, they are with us again in large numbers. Then there are other sleeves, or sleeve positions, they might be called, which simply slope away from a high place on the arm to a low place on the bodice, near the waistline. They are for the afternoon frocks, and for some of the more formal evening gowns, and they are most becoming to many types of figures.

Motoring Gloves.
For motorizing Redfern makes gloves in the fabric of the suit, buttoning them to the sleeves in order to keep out the wind. The effect of the material continuing from the shoulder to the tips of the fingers is very chic. A close-fitting cloth cap that buttons to the coat completes the costume.

SOME MORE GOOD THINGS

Sweet potatoes and yams are delicious stuffed and are easily prepared.

Stuffed Sweet Potatoes.—Bake sweet potatoes until tender. Put potatoes through a ricer, add salt, pepper, cream, brown sugar if needed, beaten egg and top with a spoonful of brown sugar. Place in the oven until nicely browned. Serve with a roast fowl.

Cranberry Frappe.—Dissolve a pint of sugar in one quart of water, boil twenty minutes, add one pint of cranberry juice and pulp put through a sieve and freeze as usual. Serve in sherbet cups.

Cheese Salad.—Grate American cheese and mix with cream to the consistency to roll into small balls; add cayenne, paprika and roll into small balls; place on head lettuce and garnish with chopped celery and hard-cooked eggs. Use either mayonnaise or a boiled dressing.

Pop Corn Cookies.—Beat the whites of two eggs until stiff, add one-half cupful of pulverized sugar and one cupful of finely chopped pop corn mixed with two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered sheet, one inch apart. Spread with a spatula dipped in cold water and bake twenty-five to thirty minutes.

Currant Pie.—Put two tablespoonfuls of water into a saucepan with the grated rind and juice of a lemon, one cupful of dried currants, one-half cupful of sugar, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of molasses and one and one-half cupfuls of water; bring to the boiling point and boil five minutes. Cool and fill a baked crust, decorate with a meringue or marshmallows and brown in the oven.

Vegetable Dinner.—A good dinner is mashed potato, buttered onion, beets, spinach, carrots and lima beans well buttered. All served on the plate, one will never mind having no meat.

Why should the Spirit of Mortal be proud?
Like a swift flying meteor, a fast flying cloud
Man passes from life to his death in the grave.

OUT OF THE CASSEROLE

Casserole dishes are good for days when one is busy and has no time to watch the cooking of a meal.

Chicken en Casserole.—Cut two chickens as for frying, remove the meat from the bones and put the bones into a kettle with one quart of cold water with salt and pepper, one clove of garlic and a diced stalk of celery. Simmer until reduced one-half. Fry the chicken and arrange in the casserole; over this put one cupful of cooked rice, pour in the stock and cook an hour and one-half.

Kidneys and Vermicelli.—Split and skin eight or ten sheep's kidneys and cut in slices, saving a few uncut for the top. Cook a few minutes in butter, add two sliced onions and fry. Add a tablespoonful of stock or water, salt and pepper to taste and stew in the casserole until tender. Place cooked vermicelli over the top of the dish and garnish with the whole kidneys. Reheat and serve very hot from the casserole.

Cauliflower au Gratin.—Cook a large cauliflower until tender in boiling salted water, then drain and dry. Divide into flowerets and place in a well-buttered casserole. Cover with well-seasoned white sauce, sprinkle with one-half cupful of bread crumbs and one-half cupful of cheese mixed together and brown in a hot oven.

Duck en Casserole.—Cut one cooked duck in pieces. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and fry the duck in it. Sprinkle with one tablespoonful of flour and brown. Add two cupfuls of stock, one chopped onion, a little parsley, a bay leaf, one teaspoonful of lemon, the same of meat extract and currant jelly, with a few drops of kitchen bouquet.

Buttered Apples.—Peel, core and cut in eighth ten apples, arranging in a baking dish. Add one-half cupful of sugar or honey and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Cover the top with bits of butter, cover and bake until the apples are tender. Decorate with marshmallows and brown. Serve with cream.

MOTHER! MOVE

CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

CONCERN WAS FOR MOTHER

Of Course Little Frank Was Not the Least Bit Afraid of the Darkness.

The family has moved from a gas-lighted house to one where there is electricity, and baby Frank, standing on tip toe, can just reach the two push buttons inside the rooms. They are a source of great amusement and he never fails to press them whenever he passes.

A few nights ago his mother came from the upper rooms and announced bedtime. Little Florence ran upstairs immediately. Frank, up to his usual tricks, pushed the button, and off went the light. The overwhelming darkness frightened the little fellow. After a minute he asked: "Mother, are you there?" "Yes, dear," said his amused mother. Another pause. "Mother, are you 'frail'?"

"No, dear, are you?"
"No, I ain't 'frail,' but you better put the light on. I'm 'frail' you will be 'frail.'"

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

UNUSED TO EVENING DINNER

Grownup Recalls Embarrassing Incident Which Occurred in Her Childhood Days.

As a child in our family I was accustomed to having dinner at noon and a light supper in the evening, because there were several of us, and my mother considered it too harmful to have a heavy meal at night.

We had as a friend a woman who lived several blocks away. One day she called to me as I was returning from school and asked my two brothers and me to come to dinner the next day.

The following day the three of us went to her house at noon. She looked a little surprised as we came, but said nothing. After about a half an hour we wondered when we were to have dinner. She asked me why we were back from school so early that noon.

"We came to dinner," I said.
She smiled and said, "My dear, we have dinner this evening."

I called to my two brothers, and fled in embarrassment.—Exchange.

Michigan Game Refuges.

Game refuges and breeding grounds established in 1921 by the Michigan state conservation department total 25,000 acres. They are located in Midland, Gladwin, Emmet and Oshtemo counties. Particular attention has been given in these areas to the distribution and establishment of the Chinese ring-necked pheasant.

Back Bad Since the Grip?

Has a cold or grip sapped your strength? Do you suffer constant backache, feel nervous and depressed? Then look to your kidneys! Many cases of kidney trouble are the result of infectious disease. The kidneys have broken down under the strain of filtering disease-created poisons from the blood. That's why a cold or grip often leaves backache, headaches, dizzy spells and irregular kidney action. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor.

An Illinois Case

R. O. Hicks, wholesale grocery salesman, 617 E. Poplar St., Taylorville, Ill., says: "I had a dull pain through my back when I stooped over; a sharp catch took me, making it hard for me to straighten. My kidneys acted too freely and the secretions contained brick-dust-like sediment. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they cleared up all the trouble and my cure has been lasting."

A capable housewife was trying to impress upon her maid the need of system in her work.

After carefully explaining her own methods in her work, she asked: "Now, Olga, just what do I mean by system? Do you understand what system means?"

"Ja, ja," giggled Olga; "seesteeem means doin' theengs the hardest way."

Plain Diction.

"Your constituents say you don't use classical English."

"That's the way I want them to feel about it," answered Senator Sorghum. "When we ent together I want them to realize that the object of the meeting is to talk business and not to organize a literary society."

For Your Back and Kidneys

You Will Have Vigorous Vitality if You Follow This Advice.

Higginsville, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered severe pain in my back and the back part of my head. My kidneys were very inactive from time to time and sluggish. I was extremely nervous, had poor appetite, was melancholy, restless and completely worn out. I used every available remedy recommended for the kidneys but obtained temporary relief only, but I can truthfully say that after using one box of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets all of the former symptoms are now removed and I feel like a new man.
